

Your data, your control

Wednesday, 02 May 2018
10:00 to 16:00

No.11 Cavendish Square, London, W1G 0AN

A use MY data workshop to examine and discuss the ways in which patient data is being used, how patients are being involved and how they can play a stronger part. The programme will feature:

- ❖ Machine learning and patient inclusion – Microsoft Research
- ❖ Patient Data Choices project and primary care preparations for the National Data Opt-out – Royal College of General Practitioners
- ❖ How patients, who want to be more active in biobanking, can ensure their biobank data is used – Medicines Discovery Catapult
- ❖ A facilitated session to find out the questions that patients still need answers to, about how their data is used and shared

Workshop chair – Mike Birtwistle, Incisive Health

The workshop is aimed at patients, relatives and carers, the public and professionals and is open to all who are interested.

It is free to attend, and expenses can be covered for delegates who are patients, relatives and carers. Please indicate your requirements at the initial stage of registration.

Registration is open from Tuesday, 03 April until Thursday, 26 April.
To book your place please email events@usemydata.org.uk

“I do think that patient choice is vital – but as patients we need to be informed and understand the impact (in terms of continuing valuable research) that our decisions might make.”
