

Case Study – Patient Advocate Stories

Roger Wilson
Patient advocate, use MY data

The important thing is there are a lot of very good minds, both from the IT world and the medical world, but also from the world of ethics and the law, applying themselves to this. So, I'm listening to the debate and I'm fairly confident that good answers will come out of that question.

I'm old enough to remember a data free time. The big jump was made with the Cancer Reform Strategy in 2007, which pulled data to the fore and the potential for data. My message to any policy maker now is; learn that lesson that was first written in 2007.

We are building an online library, where the patient voice is heard direct, talking about the rewards of using their data
